

ikeGPS Group Limited Securities Trading Policy

Date: February 2022
Original version: July 2014

Securities Trading Policy and Guidelines

This policy applies to all directors, officers, employees, contractors and advisers of IKEGPS Group Limited and its subsidiaries (IKE) who intend to trade in IKE's listed securities. In this policy 'trade' includes buying or selling listed securities, or agreeing to do so, whether as principal or agent, but it does not include subscription for, or the issue of, new securities.

In addition to this Policy and Guidelines, furthermore specific and stringent rules also apply to trading in IKE's securities, by directors, employees and certain specified contractors (see Additional Trading Restrictions for Restricted Persons).

1. Introduction and Purpose

This document details IKE's policy on, and rules for dealing in the following securities (Restricted Securities):

- IKE ordinary shares (NZX trading code IKE)
- any other listed securities of IKE, and any listed derivatives (including futures contracts listed on an authorised futures exchange) in respect of IKE's listed securities, from time to time.

The requirements imposed by the policy are separate from, and in addition to, the legal prohibitions on insider trading in New Zealand and any other country where those securities may be listed.

If you do not understand any part of this policy, or how it applies to you, you should raise the matter with the Company Secretary before dealing with any securities covered by this policy.

Fundamental Rule – Insider trading is prohibited at all times

If you possess material information (refer to definition below), then whether or not you are a Restricted Person below, you must not:

- trade Restricted Securities;
- advise or encourage others to trade, or hold any Restricted Securities; or
- pass on the material information to others.

The prohibitions apply regardless of how you learn of the information, and regardless of why you are trading.

The prohibition on insider trading applies not only to information concerning IKE's securities. If a person has material information in relation to listed securities of another issuer (including futures contracts listed on an authorised futures exchange) over listed securities, that person must not trade in those securities.

2. Insider Trading Laws

If you have any material information, it is illegal for you to:

- trade IKE's listed securities;
- advise or encourage another person to trade or hold IKE's listed securities;
- advise or encourage a person to advise or encourage another person to trade or hold IKE's listed securities; or
- pass on the material information to anyone else – including colleagues, family or friends – knowing (or where you ought to have known) that the other person will use that information to trade, continue to hold, or advise or encourage someone else to trade, or hold, IKE's listed securities.

This offence, called "insider trading", can subject you to criminal liability including large fines and/or imprisonment, and civil liability, which may include being sued by another party or IKE, for any loss suffered as a result of illegal trading.

3. Confidential Information

In addition to the above, you also have a duty of confidentiality to IKE. You must not reveal any confidential information concerning IKE to a third party (unless that third party has signed a confidentiality agreement with IKE and you have been authorised to disclose the confidential information), or to use confidential information in any way which may injure or cause loss to IKE, or use confidential information to gain an advantage for yourself. You should ensure that external advisers keep IKE information confidential.

What is material information?

Material information is information that:

- is not generally available to the market; and
- if it were generally available to the market, would have a material effect on the price of IKE's listed securities.

Information is generally available to the market if it has been released as an NZX announcement, or investors that commonly invest in IKE's listed securities can readily obtain the information (whether by observation, use of expertise, purchase or other means).

It does not matter how you come to know the material information (including whether you learn it in the course of carrying out your responsibilities, or in passing in the corridor, or in a lift, or at a social function).

Information includes rumours, matters of supposition, intentions of a person (including IKE), and information, which is insufficiently definite to warrant disclosure to the public.

What are some examples of material information?

- The following list is illustrative only. Material information could include information concerning:
- the financial performance of IKE;
- a possible change in the strategic direction of IKE;
- the introduction of an important new product or service;
- a possible acquisition or sale of any assets or company by IKE;
- entry into or the likely entry into or termination or likely termination of material contracts or other business arrangements which are not publicly known;
- a possible change in IKE's capital structure;
- a change in the historical pattern of dividends;
- senior management changes;
- a material legal claim by or against the IKE; or
- any other unexpected liability, which is not generally available to the market (including where it has not been released to the market by IKE).

Exceptions

This policy does not apply to:

- acquisitions and disposals by gift or inheritance; or
- acquisitions through an issue of new listed securities, such as an issue of new shares on the exercise of options, under a rights issue, or a dividend reinvestment plan.

Short term trading discouraged

You should not engage in short term trading (the buying or selling of listed securities within a 6 month period), unless there are exceptional circumstances discussed with and approved by the Company Secretary.

Short term trading can be a key indicator of insider trading, particularly if undertaken on a regular basis or in large amounts. Therefore, to reduce the risk of an allegation of insider trading, do not trade listed securities on a short-term basis.

If in doubt, don't!

The rules contained in this policy do not replace your legal obligations. The boundary between what is (and is not) in breach of the law is not always clear. Sometimes behaviour that you consider to be ethical actually may be insider trading. If in doubt, don't!

4. Breaches of policy

Strict compliance with this policy is a condition of employment and engagement of advisers. Breaches of this policy will be subject to disciplinary action, which may include termination of employment or a contract for services. This is in addition to any other legal sanction which may apply to you by virtue of insider trading laws.

5. Monitoring of trading

IKE may monitor the trading of directors, officers, employees, contractors and advisers as part of the administration of this policy.

6. Application of policy

The Board of IKE has approved this policy. The Board may approve updates, amendments to and exemptions to this policy from time to time, which may be implemented by written notice to you.

To the extent of any inconsistency with any previous policy or rules relating to this subject matter, this policy prevails over them.

ADDITIONAL TRADING RESTRICTIONS FOR RESTRICTED PERSONS

1. Persons covered by Restricted Securities Trading Restrictions

The additional trading restrictions set out below apply to:

- all directors and employees of IKE;
- any contractors designated by the Company Secretary as a Restricted Person for the purposes of this policy; and
- trusts and companies controlled by such persons.

Persons covered by these additional restrictions are called “Restricted Persons”. Employees, directors and contractors will be considered responsible for the actions of trusts and companies controlled by them. In this respect, “control” is not to be construed in a technical way but by looking at how decisions are made in practice.

2. Additional trading restrictions for Restricted Persons (black-out period)

Restricted Persons are prohibited from trading in any Restricted Securities during the following specific “black-out” periods:

- from IKE’s half-year balance date, until the first trading day after the half-year results are released to NZX;
- from the date 30 days prior to IKE’s year end balance date, 31 March, until the first trading day after the full-year results are released to NZX.

Restricted Persons are not permitted to trade any Restricted Securities during a black-out period unless IKE’s Board provides a specific exemption.

Please note that if you hold material information you must not trade Restricted Securities at any time – regardless of these periods.

3. Requirements before trading

Before trading in Restricted Securities, at any time, Restricted Persons must, in writing:

- notify IKE’s Company Secretary of their intention to trade in securities, and seek consent to do so (using the Request for Consent to Trade in Listed Securities form attached);
- confirm that they do not hold material information; and
- confirm that there is no known reason to prohibit trading in any Restricted Securities.

A consent is only valid for a period of 10 trading days after notification. A consent is automatically deemed to be withdrawn if the person becomes aware of material information prior to trading.

4. Requirements after trading

A Restricted Person must advise IKE's Company Secretary promptly following completion of any trade, and the Restricted Person must comply with any disclosure obligations it has under the Securities Markets Act 1988 and the Securities Markets (Disclosure of Relevant Interests by Directors and Officers) Regulations 2008 or the Financial Markets Conduct Act 2014 and regulations, when available.
